1. Introduction

The requirement to undertake domestic homicide reviews (DHRs) was established on a statutory basis on 13th April 2011 under Section 9 of the Domestic Violence Crime and Victims Act (2004). Local areas are required to conduct a multi-agency review if the death meets the following criteria:

If the death of a person aged 16 or over has, or appears to have, resulted from violence, abuse or neglect by a person to whom they were related or with whom they were, or had been, in an intimate personal relationship, or a member of the same household as themselves.

Overall responsibility to conduct a DHR lies with the local Community Safety Partnership (CSP) and not solely with the local authority area in which the homicide took place.

A DHR should seek to establish the lessons to be learned about how local professionals and organisations work individually and together to safeguard victims. It aims to identify clear lessons, apply those lessons in timely actions, appropriately amend practice and change policies and procedures. The overall aim is to prevent domestic violence and abuse homicide and improve responses to those affected.

2. Purpose of this toolkit

This toolkit has been designed to provide an overview to assist Bexley Community Safety Partnership (BCSP) with the undertaking of a domestic homicide review (DHR).

For detailed and up to date guidance BCSP should check the Home Office website and follow their advised templates. DHRs arise from complex situations and each case will be different however sharing your learning and learning from others is an important consideration of DHRs.

3. Government definition of domestic abuse

From March 2013, a new cross government definition of domestic violence and abuse was introduced by the Government:

"Any incident or pattern of incidents of controlling, coercive or threatening behaviour, violence or abuse between those aged 16 or over who are or have been intimate partners or family members regardless of gender or sexuality. This can encompass, but is not limited to, the following types of abuse:

psychological – physical - sexual - financial - emotional

Controlling behaviour is a range of acts designed to make a person subordinate and/or dependent by isolating them from sources of support, exploiting their resources and capacities for personal gain, depriving them of the means needed for independence, resistance and escape and regulating their everyday behaviour

Coercive behaviour is: an act or a pattern of acts of assault, threats, humiliation and intimidation or other abuse that is to harm, punish or frighten their victim."

More information about controlling and coercive behaviour in an intimate or family relationship can be found in the statutory guidance.

This definition also includes so-called 'honour' based violence (HBV), female genital mutilation (FGM) and forced marriage (FM), and it is clear that victims are not confined to one gender or ethnic group.

4. Multi-agency statutory guidance for the conduct of DHRs

The Home Office have published revised guidance for undertaking a DHR. Multi-agency statutory guidance

The guidance applies to all DHR notifications. The guidance should be referred to in all circumstances where consideration is being given to establishing or carrying out a DHR and in the undertaking of all stages of a multi-agency review.

The Home Office guidance gives core definitions together with the purpose of the guidance and DHR's, this includes:

- how a DHR should be established and conducted
- timescales for undertaking a DHR
- how to involve family, friends and other support networks
- publication of the overview report
- quality assurance (QA) and dissemination of lessons learned

All partners are advised to be familiar with the guidance, the definitions and terminology within it, be acquainted with and use all the suggested template items linked at Appendix A.

5. Local requirements when establishing a DHR in Bexley and notification of a DHR

In line with national guidance, the experience and learning from the Safeguarding Boards and the BCSP Boards desire for:

- the learning and lessons from DHRs to be made explicit and disseminated amongst partners
- that there is a clear role for BCSP in maintaining an oversight on the progress of the DHRs
- to share learning and practice.

When establishing a DHR there is a requirement to:

- Inform BCSP that they have been formally notified by the police that a DHR needs to be established. The notification should include brief circumstances of the incident and whether there are any children or vulnerable adults either directly or indirectly involved. A DHR notification form is included at Appendix B.
- BCSP is to notify Multi-Agency Safeguarding Hub (MASH), Adults Safeguarding and Children's Safeguarding Boards.
- On receipt on this information the BCSP Domestic Abuse and Sexual Violence (DASV) Strategy Manager, on behalf of BCSP, will alert the Mayor's Office of Policing and Crime (MOPAC) and others as required that a DHR is being established, using the Home Office Community Safety Partnership reporting form (link at Appendix B)
- The BCSP DASV Strategy Manager will notify the family of the potential DHR and recruit an independent chair (as appropriate).
- BCSP DASV Strategy Manager will conduct a scoping exercise to determine all partners / agencies that maybe required to take part in the review.
- CSP DASV to notify family of potential DHR and will recruit an independent chair.
- When drafting the DHR terms of reference the CSP DASV and / or DHR Chair will include that they will ensure that as lessons and actions are identified they will be notified to MOPAC, Adults Safeguarding and Children's Safeguarding Boards so that the monitoring and review of actions and embedding of learning into practice can be effectively undertaken.
- Ensure that there is clarity that the DHR, the overview report and related action plan are the responsibility of BCSP.
- Before finalising any recommendations, the DHR Panel should discuss these with the organisations concerned. This is in order to agree the final recommendation so that all parties are clear about the purpose of the recommendation, what is expected by it and that the appropriate technical or organisational language is used.
- On issuing the final report with agreed recommendations BCSP should send the recommendations to the relevant named Chief Officer and outline when it is they expect to receive a response.

- On receipt of a positive response from the Home Office’s Quality Assurance Panel, BCSP will report to the next available meeting of the BCSP Board with a brief overview report along with the recommendations from the DHR. This information will in turn be shared with the Domestic Abuse Partnership and Safeguarding Boards at their next meeting.
- A link to the published DHR report will be put up on the London Borough of Bexley website’s Community Safety pages, with the site acting as a central resource for the DHRs that have taken place.
- On behalf of BCSP the DASV Strategy Manager will maintain a spreadsheet of all the DHRs that have or are taking place in Bexley. This will require the DASV Strategy Manager requesting progress updates on the review, the report and the implementation of actions. Also, will provide a report showing an overview of progress on the delivery of recommendations, quarterly, as a standing item to the BCSP Board. The spreadsheet and the overview report will also be routinely shared with the Children and Adults Safeguarding Boards, Domestic Abuse Partnership and others as required.
- The BCSP Board will also receive from the DASV Strategy Manager:
 - an update on progress of implementation of recommendations 6 months after the report has been published, and
 - produce a ‘learning leaflet’ that will demonstrate how that learning has been embedded in practice which will be shared with both Safeguarding Boards and Domestic Abuse Partnership.
- Key learning from Children Serious Case Reviews (SCR) and Adult Serious Adult Reviews (SAR) will be shared with the BCSP and Domestic Abuse Partnership.
- At least once a year the DASV Strategy Manager will organise an event, such as a learning seminar, to help spread the learning and influence improvements in practice particularly amongst practitioners.

When a domestic homicide occurs, the relevant police force should inform the relevant Community Safety Partnership (CSP) in writing of the incident. Overall responsibility for establishing a review rests with the local CSP as they are ideally placed to initiate a DHR and review panel due to their multi-agency design and locations across England and Wales. CSPs are made up of representatives from the ‘responsible authorities’ (police, local authorities, fire and rescue authorities, probation service and health) who work together to protect their local communities from crime and help people feel safer.

Under section 9(1) of the 2004 Act, a domestic homicide review means a review of the circumstances in which the death of a person aged 16 or over has, or appears to have, resulted from violence, abuse or neglect by—

- a) a person to whom he/she was related or with whom he/she was or had been in an intimate personal relationship, or
- b) a member of the same household as himself, or
- c) where a victim took their own life (suicide) and the circumstances give rise to concern, for example it emerges that there was coercive controlling behaviour in the relationship, a review should be undertaken, even if a suspect is not charged with an offence or they are tried and acquitted. Reviews are not about who is culpable.

Further guidance on DHR work in other areas

Prepare ahead

- Consider local arrangements within your CSP, individual agencies and services and across other areas well before you are ever called upon to undertake a DHR. When the call comes there will be immense pressures to deal with it.
- Consider how the Partnership will fund a DHR including the costs of an independent chair and report author.
- Consider and plan for equality and diversity factors including language issues and cultural factors. Ensure these are reflected throughout the DHR and you have planned for appropriate additional support to the DHR process.
- Panel members should consider a wide range of statutory and non-statutory services and agencies, including the voluntary and specialist sectors, as they may have been involved with or have considerable knowledge to add to a DHR panel. They may either be core members or invited attendees for particular discussions. Developing a wide range of relationships locally to facilitate this will help you when the time comes. The skills and knowledge of the panel significantly enhance and complement those of the chair and they should be well drawn on during the DHR.
- Consider how you will service a DHR, for example:
 - Minute takers and administrative staff. Can they be drawn from internal corporate business support, council committee support or from other partner agencies or elsewhere?
 - Do you have access to:
 - report writers with clear training and skills
 - internal management review report writers with clear skills and training
 - staff to fulfil the other and varied functions that may arise
 - consider how you will manage the media management responsibilities

The victim at the heart of the DHR

- Always remember that they were a person with a personal and private life. An experienced DHR chair explained that showing a photograph, sensitively and appropriately, of the deceased to the DHR panel at the first and subsequent panel meetings helped with this aspect.
- Undertake your work from the premise that the deceased had friends and loved ones. They have their own memories and they will want lessons to be learned and acted upon to make their loss achieve some positive outcomes for others. You should make every effort to work with them as appropriate and liaise with them about this statutory DHR process. They will read the report, so make your work worthy of their memories and of the deceased.
- Plan how you will involve family and significant others early in your work as Home Office guidance urge you to look at this. You will need to think when the time will be right, how it fits with court proceedings and who from amongst the review panel is best placed to undertake activity with tact and sensitivity. You may wish to consider involving external domestic abuse services in supporting you in this task.
- Having a panel member with clear knowledge of domestic abuse and the impact that it can have on victims and others is key.
- Considering the wide range of agencies, services and individuals that may have associations with the case and have relevant knowledge and information to share with the DHR at the start. Reviewing whether others need to be invited as work progresses is prudent and advised best practice.
- Create clear Terms of Reference, appropriate and proportionate to the nature of the review and continual reference to them will help keep the DHR on track. These may need to be adjusted in discussion with the Home Office if appropriate. The parameters of the review in terms of breadth of agencies or the time period to be covered may also need to be monitored as information develops on the case.

- Appointing a chair with the most appropriate knowledge skills and strengths to manage the DHR is key. They do not need to meet all the criteria in the Home Office guidance and indeed this is unlikely in one person but their skills should be complemented by those of the panel. The chair can also be mentored by people outside the immediate DHR.
- Give serious consideration to appointing a report author; someone with the skill to draw together a wide range of information and create a clear and concise narrative about the review, its finding, learning and the recommendations.
- The role of the DHR Chair can be greatly assisted by a well-balanced and well-informed panel consider representatives from a wide sphere. When listing the panel in overarching reports and papers, provide their names and roles.

Support to panel members

Remember that all staff involved in the DHR or otherwise affected by it may need support regardless of their professional experience. The information disclosed at Panel meetings maybe distressing or upsetting that could trigger an emotional response and panel members should be assured that confidential support is readily available.

Report and action plan

- Keep chronologies to a practical and readable length whilst still covering the key salient points in an accessible format.
- Where information about other children, dependents or significant others are mentioned in a chronology or case report, ensure that it is clear to readers who they are, how they fit in the scenario and how it affected them, and what has since happened to them as appropriate in order to try to avoid leaving unanswered questions in the mind of a subsequent reader.
- The actions in the action plan need:
 - A clearly identified lead agency and named individual, for example, Jean Smith, Head of Adult Safeguarding at Surrey County Council rather than just Surrey County Council.
 - An identified single point of contact within the CSP who is responsible for overseeing progress against the action plan and reporting back to the CSP and others.
 - To have been agreed with that agency/service and that the assigned lead is the correct one
 - The DHR Panel to develop the DHR Action Plan and have it formally agreed by the CSP
 - All key issues identified in the report must have an associated recommendation
 - The action plan should be shared with the CSB, OPCC, SCSU and others as appropriate to assist with joint ownership of actions
 - Actions need to be formally passed to those who will complete them at a senior level also advising the responsible officers.
- Clear lines of communications about progress need to be maintained between the officer coordinating the action plan in the local CSP area and those undertaking actions.
- Actions in cases where individuals were not known: Recommendations and actions should still be carefully considered in cases where the victim or others were not known to services, as valuable future improvements to practice may still be identified.
- Adopt a professional and open tone in your reports and recommendations. The aim of a DHR is not to apportion blame but to identify how future practice can be improved. Report writers need to consider the tone and style thoughtfully to reflect careful consideration of how the facts and issues impact on future practice and present that clearly and neutrally.
- Accuracy and factual correctness is vital. Ensure you have recorded correctly and that legislation, policy and practice is cited accurately.
- Submit the final report to the Home Office's DHR Quality Assurance Panel. This panel has the responsibility for quality assuring all overview reports for domestic homicide reviews conducted under the statutory guidance.

Dissemination of learning

Learning from the DHRs is a standing item at meetings of the Community Safety Board, with actions and recommendations arranged by theme.

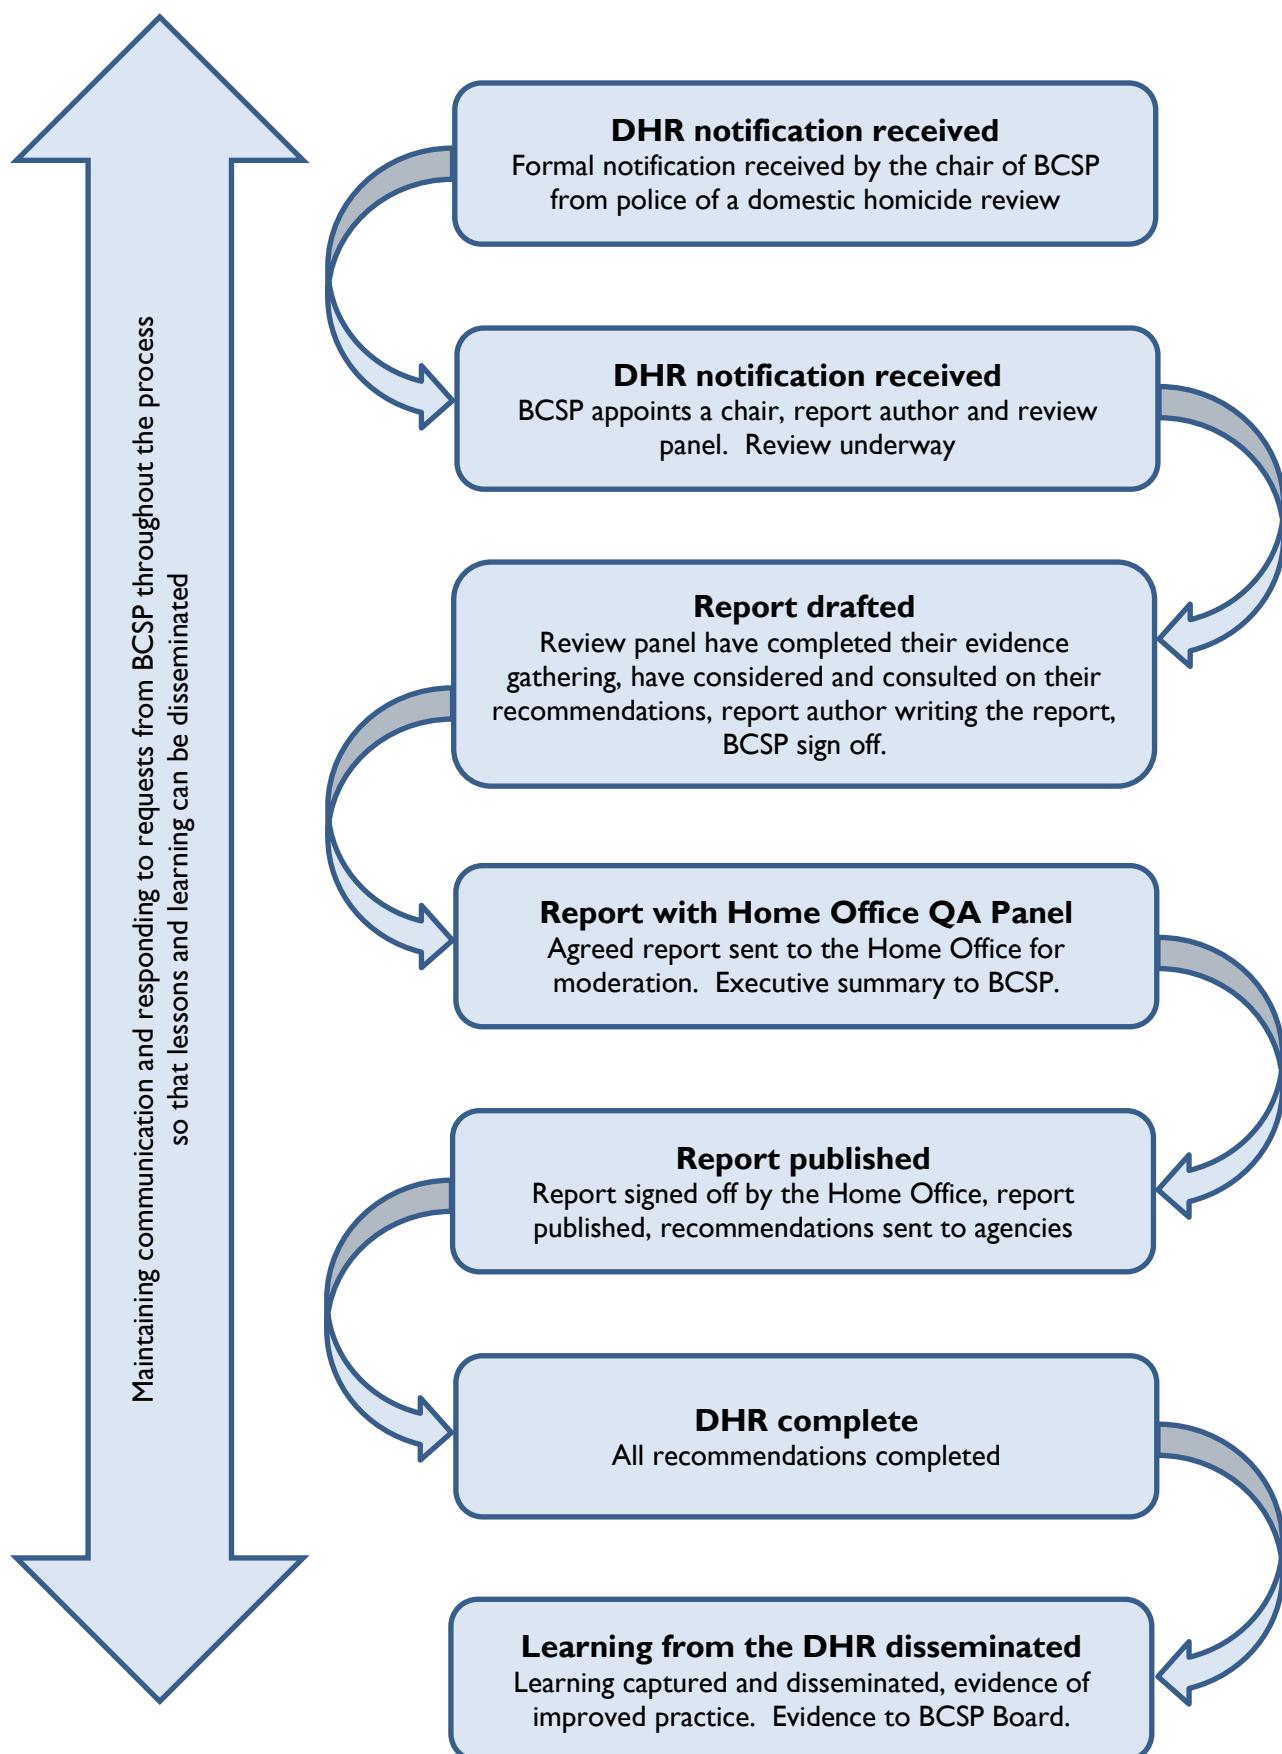

Key lessons and learning from the DHRs will also be shared with other Boards, for example Children and Adult Safeguarding, in order to inform and improve practice. The learning from these other Boards review processes will in turn be shared with the Community Safety Board and the Community Safety Partnerships.

A summary of the learning from the DHRs conducted to date, categorised by common themes, include:

- Recording and sharing of information
- Assessment / identification of risk
- Application of / adherence to policy
- Staff training and awareness
- Appropriate sign-posting and referral
- Inter-agency communication and meeting processes
- DHR process

Currently there is no mechanism for evidencing that actions from the various DHRs have resulted in a change in practice that will affect future outcomes.
